

Whilst we must all acknowledge our individual roles in contributing to climate change, it is fair to say that certain groups are far more responsible than others.

Those that fund climate science denial, those that create fraudulent carbon offset schemes, those that sabotage & delay our attempts to create a more sustainable world.

To believe they do so simply out of a desire for profit is a mistake. One of the defining characteristics of the powerful and wealthy is multi-generational thinking. The ability to plan for the long term, securing the future not just for themselves but also their descendants. Of course such people believe in climate change!

So what then could be driving their reckless actions? It would seem they are attempting to bring about ecological disaster on purpose. The answer becomes clear when you understand one of their prime motivations.

For millenia they have guided & shaped human society. Weeding out the 'unfit', promoting the propagation of more 'desirable' characteristics. Whether you believe in eugenics or not, we live in a world moulded by those that do. For the last 150 years they've turned to science & technology to achieve the goal of human betterment however it would seem that is not enough.

The chaos caused by a climate catastrophe, would grant them the opportunity to radically reshape the human race into one which more closely resembles their ideal. A plan which sounds utterly insane, but the evidence for which is right in front of us. It is plain to see they are actively working towards that outcome.

Climate catastrophe will not be averted unless we directly confront the powers trying to bring it about. If we blow the lid on their project of artificial human enhancement, we can wake people up to the true nature of the multiple dangers we face.
